

Abstract

North Korean Human Rights Issues and ‘Humanitarian Intervention’: Disputes and the Critical Evaluations

Human rights is a now universal concept, but it is still controversial topic especially in its definition and universal application. It causes political reproduction related to understanding and its application in practice. Nowadays the problem has arisen under what conditions international intervention policy could be justified. Particularly, it is a core controversy that a World Hegemon is related to the humanitarian intervention. This controversial between theory and practice recurs in the field of North Korean Human rights issues.

This paper reviews North Korean human rights issues in the critical eyes. It means that this work tries to find out the way how to approach to about North Korean human rights issues under the various disputes. Moreover, main issues related to North Korean human rights issues are analyzed and also presented some practical and basic principles in this paper.

Key words: Human Rights, North Korean Human rights, Humanitarian Intervention, Sovereignty, Peace